The primary treatment used by doctors of chiropractic is the spinal adjustment. I will use that procedure to treat you.

-The nature of the chiropractic adjustment.

Spinal joints that are locked up, fixated, or not moving properly can irritate nerves that are in a close proximity. Chiropractic adjustments add motion to these areas. I will use my hands or a mechanical device upon your body in such a way as to move your joints. That may cause an audible "pop" or "click," much as you have experienced when you "crack" your knuckles. This helps restore nervous system integrity and can improve the healing process.

-The material risks inherent in chiropractic adjustment.

As with any health care procedure, there are certain complications which may arise during a chiropractic adjustment. Those complications include: fractures, disc injuries, dislocations, and muscle strain, Horner's syndrome, diaphragmatic paralysis, cervical myelopathy and costovertebral strains and separations. Some types of manipulation of the neck have been associated with injuries to the arteries in the neck leading to or contributing to serious complications including stroke. Some patients will feel some stiffness and soreness following the first few days of treatment.

-The probability of those risks occurring.

Fractures are rare occurrences and generally result from some underlying weakness of the bone which we check for during the taking of your history and during examination and X-ray. Stroke has been the subject of tremendous disagreement within and without the profession with one prominent authority saying that there is at most a one-in-a-million chance of such an outcome. Since even that risk should be avoided if possible, we employ tests in our examination which are designed to identify if you may be susceptible to that kind of injury. The other complications are also generally described as "rare."

-Ancillary treatment.

In addition to chiropractic adjustments, I intend to use the following treatments:

Stretching and icing the areas of concern relating to the patient's injuries.

-The risks and dangers attendant to remaining untreated.

Remaining untreated allows the formation of adhesions and reduces mobility which sets up a pain reaction further reducing mobility. Over time this process may complicate treatment making it more difficult and less effective the longer it is postponed. The probability that non-treatment will complicate a later rehabilitation is very high.

DO NOT SIGN UNTIL YOU HAVE READ AND UNDERSTAND THE ABOVE

By signing below, I state that I have weighed the risks involved in undergoing treatment and have myself decided that it is in my best interest to undergo the treatment recommended. Having been informed of the risks, I hereby give my consent to that treatment.
